

Proprietary Historical Data Series

Seeking alpha.

Using complete market data only available from GFD, you will uncover hidden investment opportunities and mitigate risks inherent in common electronic feeds.

Leading fund managers and research analysts throughout the world rely upon Global Financial Data's unique combination of alternative and core data to analyze financial markets and create alpha opportunities others miss. GFD is the first company to have transcribed and compiled all equities that have EVER traded on all of the U.S. Exchanges (not just the NYSE) and the London Stock Exchange.

For over 25 years, GFD has provided its customers with several centuries of data never before transcribed into a digital format.

Global Financial Data has established itself as the world's alternative historical data specialists, building unique databases that cover a cross-section of global financial markets. GFD subscribers produce superior investment strategies, trading models, and algorithms through the implementation of GFD's exhaustive content of the two major markets that have dominated world finance for centuries. GFD clients have been out-performing the markets and redefining Alpha since the early 90s using our robust content.

This content is an ideal complement to analysis using AI, R and Python to uncover patterns in financial markets that have never before been explored due to limitations of prior data sources.

Proprietary Historical Data Series

---