

GFD Data Extensions

GFD delves deep.

We use original records to extend our time series back to inception.

Traditional vendors are limited by the automated data feeds delivered by exchanges and other third-party sources.

Beginning with hand-recorded documents from monasteries and continuing through the centuries of publications that followed, we have scoured libraries and archives from around the world. These historical records have now been electronically digitized and appended to the current sources to provide uninterrupted, continuous service – ending in daily close data. We have done decades of research to provide you with centuries of financial content. What insight will you uncover?

GFD specializes in research so that our subscribers can focus on analysis and client relations.

GFD has extended thousands of stock and bond series covering over 200 financial markets.

GFD Data Extensions

Some of our more popular series are:

- S&P 500 Total Return Index which begins in 1871
- United States 10-year Government Bond Yield which begins in 1786
- United States Consumer Price Index which begins in 1789
- West Texas Intermediate Oil price which begins in 1859
- U.S. Dollars per British Pound which begins in 1660
- S&P 500 PE Ratio which begins in 1832
- Silver Cash Price which begins in 1000
- Gold Cash Price which begins in 1257
- United Kingdom Consumer Price Index which begins in 1209
- United Kingdom GDP which begins in 1270